After the Superior Medicine Bodhisattva finished reciting the names of the Fifty-Three Buddhas of the past, he became silent. Thereupon the cultivator entered samadhi and saw the Seven Buddhas, the World-Honored Ones of the Past, of which Vipashyin Buddha praised thus:

“Very well, very well, good man. The Fifty-Three Buddhas that you have spoken of are from the distant past; they are the buddhas who have appeared in the ancient Saha World, led sentient beings to maturity, and then entered parinirvava. If good men or good women, or other sentient beings can hear of the names of the Fifty-Three Buddhas, they will not fall into the dreadful realms for a hundred million asamkhya kalpas. And if there are those who can recite the names of the Fifty-Three Buddhas, they will be able to meet the Buddhas of all the worlds life after life. And if there are those who can respectfully pay homage to the Fifty-Three Buddhas with utmost sincerity, they will be able to eradicate the Four Grave Sins, the Five Heinous Deeds, and wrongs such as maligning the Vaipulya (Mahayana) sutras.

Shiki Buddha, Vishvabhu Buddha, Krakucchanda Buddha, Kanakamuni Buddha, and Kashyapa Buddha also praised the venerated names of the Fifty-Three Buddhas. And they praised as follows: “Good men and good women, all those who can hear the names of the Fifty-Three Buddhas and can chant and prostrate to these Buddhas, will be able to eradicate their wrongs as described above.”

Thereupon Shakyamuni Buddha told the assembly, “Countless kalpas ago, in the Dharma-ending age of the Wondrous Light Buddha, I renounced home-life to take on the path of cultivation. When I heard the names of the Fifty-Three Buddhas, I placed my palms together and my heart was filled with joy. I instructed others so that they too could hear and uphold these names. They, in turn, instructed others, up to three thousand in number. These three thousand people, all different voices but in unison, recited the names of these buddhas and prostrated wholeheartedly. By the merits of paying homage to these buddhas, they transcended the wrongs of countless millions kalpas of deaths.

“The first one thousand people were none other than the thousand buddhas of the Magnificent Kalpa, beginning with Flower Light Buddha, and ending with Vishvabhu Buddha. The next thousand are none other than the thousand buddhas in the current Virtue Kalpa, beginning with Krakucchanda Buddha, and ending with Rucika Buddha. The last thousand will be none other than the thousand Buddhas in the Constellation Kalpa, beginning with Sunlight Buddha, and ending with Sumeru Face Buddha.”

The Buddha told the cultivator named Accumulated Treasure, “Present buddhas of all the worlds, such as Good Virtue Buddha, have also heard the names of the Fifty-Three Buddhas and thereafter became buddhas of all the worlds. If sentient beings wish to eradicate the Four Grave Forbidden Sins, to repent the Five Heinous Deeds and the Ten Evils, and to eliminate the very serious offenses such as unfounded slandering and maligning of the Dharma, they should diligently recite the mantras of the Medicine King Bodhisattva and Superior Medicine Bodhisattva.

“They should also respectfully pay homage to the Seven Buddhas. And they should respectfully pay homage to the Fifty-Three Buddhas. And then they should make prostrations to all the countless buddhas of all the worlds, day and night in the six periods of time, with a clear and penetrating mind like flowing water, performing repentance thus.”

Text of Repentance

I, Buddha's disciple (say your own name), now repent with the utmost sincerity.

From beginningless time until today, before I have known the Buddha, before I have heard the Dharma, before I have met the Sangha, I did not know right from wrong.

I did not believe in causality. I was confronted with wrongful conditions. I befriended immoral persons. I committed every crime, physically, verbally, and mentally.

My bodily karma was harmful, having committed killing, stealing, and sexual misconduct. My verbal karma was harmful, having made false speech, frivolous speech, abusive speech, and malicious speech. My mental karma was harmful, giving rise to greed, anger, and ignorance.

I have killed my father, killed my mother, killed an arhat, broken the harmony of the Sangha, and made the Buddha bleed. I have burned temples and stupas and maligned the Mahayana teachings. I have intruded upon and injured the Sangha community; I have corrupted the pure and falsely accused the monks. I have violated the precepts and disregarded the proper conducts. I have done these deeds myself and taught others to do the same. I have seen and heard them being done and assisted or concurred with them.

I now declare, confess, and repent of these immeasurable and innumerable offenses.

I only hope that the Triple Gem will be merciful toward me, and allow the roots of my wrongs to dissolve like frost, and in one single thought may I become totally purified.

Repentance Ceremony to Pay Homage to the Venerated Thirty-Five Buddha Names

The Great Accumulated Treasure Sutra says: Sariputra said to the Buddha, “World-Honored One! Are not bodhisattvas afraid of greed, anger, and ignorance?”

The Buddha said, “Sariputra! All bodhisattvas break the precepts in two ways. Which are these two? The first, those related to anger. The second, those related to ignorance. These two violations are known as the serious breaking of the precepts.

“Sariputra! Violations resulting from greed are very subtle and difficult to renounce. Violations resulting from anger are crude and easy to renounce. Violations resulting from ignorance are deeply ingrained and even more difficult to renounce.

“Why is this so? The fetter of greed is the seed of all existence, entangling one in the unending cycle of life and death. For this reason it is subtle and difficult to renounce. Offenses due to anger lead one into the dreadful realms, and they are easy to relinquish and remove. Offenses due to ignorance lead one into the Eight Great Hells, and are difficult to extinguish.

“Furthermore, Sariputra, a bodhisattva who has committed the parajika offenses should repent in front of ten pure bhikshus with great sincerity and an honest straightforward mind.

“One who has committed the samghavashesa offenses should repent earnestly in front of five pure monks. One who has been touched by a woman [or man] with an impure heart, or who has given rise to impure desires by looking at each other, should repent earnestly in front of one or two pure monks.

“Sariputra! If any bodhisattvas have committed the Five Incessant Offenses, have committed parajika, or violated samghavashesa precepts, or harmed the stupas or the Sanghas, or committed the other offenses, those bodhisattvas should repent in front of the Thirty-Five Buddhas, in deep earnesty, alone day and night. They should say:

I, (say your own name),
Take refuge in the Buddha,
Take refuge in the Dharma,
Take refuge in the Sangha.

Text of Repentance

And so to the buddhas in all the worlds, who dwell in the world forever, may all the World Honored Ones have merciful consideration for me, as I repent of the offenses I have committed in this life and in former lives, throughout the cycle of births and deaths without beginning. Whether I have committed them myself, instructed others to commit them, or condoned their being committed: such as stealing from stupas, from a Sangha, or from the Sanghas of all the worlds; either stealing them myself, instructing others to steal them, or condoning their being stolen; or committing the Five Incessant Offenses, either committing them myself, instructing others to commit them, or condoning their being committed; or committing the Ten Evil Deeds, either committing them myself, instructing others to commit them, or condoning their being committed. All these wrongs, whether known by others or remaining unknown, which merit my transmigration into hells, falling among hungry ghosts or animals and other evil destinies, or into a lowly life, a life in the Border regions, or a life as Mleccha, I now repent of all the wrongs I have committed. Now the World Honored Ones, witness and remember me. Before all the buddhas, World Honored Ones, I further speak these words:

Any good roots that I have gained in this life, or in past lives; through giving, through observing the precepts, or even as little as through giving a morsel of food to an animal; or through cultivating pure conduct; any good roots from cultivating enlightenment, and any good roots from attaining supreme wisdom: all of these, accumulated and measured throughout my life spans, I dedicate to annuttara-samyak-sambodhi. In the same way buddhas of the past, present, and future make dedications, so too I make this dedication.

May the repentance of all wrongs,
 The sharing of all blessings,
 And the merits of pleading to buddhas
 All contribute to the achievement of unexcelled wisdom.

To buddhas of the past, future, and present,
 The most superior of all beings,
 The infinite sea of merits and virtues,
 I pay homage and make dedication of my life.
